

History: What makes a hero super?

What should I already know?

In EYFS I used talk to organise, sequence and clarify thinking and events. I used past, present and future forms accurately when talking about events that have happened or are to happen in the future. I could explain own knowledge and understanding, and ask appropriate questions. I showed interest in the lives of people who are familiar to me and talk about significant events in my own experiences. In Year 1, I studied about changes within living memory and aspects of change to national life and events beyond living memory that are significant nationally/globally. I learnt about significant Queens of England and how they have impacted Britain today. I discussed what character traits they had and how this makes me shape my own beliefs about the world.

Hero	Courage	Hygiene	Crimean War	Educated	Achievement	Impact	Cholera	Determined
A person who is brave and often looked up to/admired by others. 	The ability to face fear or danger. 	How much people keep themselves, or environments around them, clean. 	A war fought between 1853 and 1856 in Crimea. One side was Britain, France and Turkey. The other side was Russia. 	Having a good education. 	A thing done successfully with effort, skill or bravery. 	A powerful effect that something, especially something new, has on a person or situation.	An infectious often fatal bacterial disease of the small intestine 	Making a decision and not changing it.

Impact:

- Hygiene
- Improved Hospitals
- Equality
- Dedication and passion

Taught by her father, Florence was serious about her education and determined to do something good. Mary Seacole was also determined. Both went above and beyond to learn and to help people.

Florence Nightingale:

A hero from the past. A nurse who helped injured and sick soldiers during the Crimean War. Nicknamed 'The Lady of the Lamp' because she hardly took any time off and worked through the night with a lamp.

Mary Seacole:

A Jamaican hero from the past. She opened a hotel to help the sick and injured soldiers recover during the Crimean War.

She made a huge contribution towards nursing but also the black and minority ethnic people in Britain. Now, we have the Mary Seacole Trust which continues to help make Britain a fairer and more equal place.

The Spirit of Sport, near Middlebrook in Bolton is a statue to commemorate a huge number of local sporting heroes, from past to present.

Nat Lofthouse:

A local hero for Bolton Wanderers football. He was their greatest ever player and dedicated his life to football. Not only did he play for Bolton, he scored many goals for England but never wanted to move on to better teams. He was very loyal to Bolton.
